Developing Your People 🌟 Live Webinar Selection

All Colleagues

Dealing with difficult customers : It's one thing dealing with angry, shouting, upset customers at work, it's quite another when it's happening in your own home. Explore what it is about internal and external customer behaviour that we perceive as difficult and discover approaches you can adopt immediately to lessen the impact while working from home.

Regaining Control : In times of uncertainty and continual change, we can experience overwhelm, feel less confident in our decisions and more easily distracted. Maintaining a level of control in our lives is a core psychological need so it's no wonder we've felt challenged recently! Understand why control matters, how you can get back into the driving seat and feel more like you again.

Self Awareness : Whether you enjoy your working set-up or not, understanding what it is that you like or dislike and why, is crucial. When you can identify the needs you have and how you can set about meeting those needs, you will feel more fulfilled, energised and productive.

Why words hurt : We've all been on the receiving end of constructive feedback, a harsh word or confrontation and we know how it can have a tendency to replay in our mind and lower our mood. In this session, discover why we respond as we do and how to recover safely and quickly.

Helping others – Rescuing or Empowering : When we see someone is struggling, we typically want to help. But when we help, we tend to rescue. In this webinar, learn the impact rescuing has, the value of empowering others and some simple approaches you can try with each other right away.

Leaders

Leading a hybrid workforce : One of the biggest challenges faced by leaders through the mass move to home-working was leading remote teams. Next, will be the even greater challenge of leading a hybrid workforce where our people are dispersed across different settings. Learn four core skills and approaches to set you and your teams up for success.

Inspiring Resilience : What do we actually mean when we talk about resilience? Is it a skill? A behaviour? A trait? In this webinar we explore what resilience is and isn't and how leaders we can inspire those around them to enhance their wellbeing, feel better and adapt more easily.

Empowering, Enabling and Engaging your people : Adopting a more non-directive communication style with your people is one of the best things you can do right now as you lead your teams into an emerging future. Learn how introducing more of a coaching approach into your leadership style will benefit you, your people, your customers and your organisation.

The surprising truth about trust: Remote working has thrust the issue of trust between employee and employer into the spotlight. Learn some common misconceptions about trust, how to engender and offer it more easily and some pitfalls to avoid if you want to build trust among your people.

Intrinsic motivation matters : Whilst there will always be delight at team goodies, hamper boxes and a bonus day off, it's our intrinsic motivation that ultimately drives us. As job markets re-open through 2021, learn how tapping into intrinsic motivators will help you to retain your top talent and enable everyone to reconnect with the work they do.

Leavers

Where do I go from here? : Leaving a role, an organisation and your colleagues is daunting. Often, and understandably, there's a rush to find another role and because we like to stick with what we know, we do a similar job somewhere else. In this webinar, learn how to identify your skills, strengths and motivators to help you focus your job search on work that you will enjoy, be motivated by and fulfil you.

Top Tips for CV Writing : CV writing is tough! In this webinar, we will share tips on layout, format and content, as well as how to position your experience in a way that makes you more likely to get that all important interview.

Making a great first impression remotely : With interviews likely to be conducted remotely for some time yet, this webinar addresses everything from technology to conversation starters. And if your interview is face to face? Most of what we cover still applies!

How to smash your interview : The things to prepare for, how to answer competency questions, what to ask at the end of the interview and how to make sure you're memorable - for all the right reasons. A webinar not to be missed.

Job Search Clinic: Bring your specific questions, concerns and examples to this open forum and your webinar host will share their tips and experience to help you on your way. (Live only)
